Professional Biography

Davita Nicole is a speaker, executive, and leadership influencer who inspires people to connect purpose with performance. With more than 35 years of speaking experience, she has engaged sizable audiences across the commercial and private sectors, including conventions, conferences, professional associations, corporate settings, and community organizations. Her style combines executive perspective, relatable storytelling, practical strategies, positive energy, and a people-first philosophy that challenges audiences to think differently and take purposeful action.

A seasoned human resources executive and Principal/Founder of Davita Nicole, Davita brings deep experience in leadership, workforce strategy, organizational culture, talent development, and the human side of business. She has spoken at UNLEASH America in Las Vegas on two occasions, the Marcus Evans conference in Boston, and a Health Resources and Services Administration (HRSA) panel for Women's History Month, in addition to engagements with the Health Action Council, Insider Threat Defense Group, MABSE, and other government, public, private, non-secular organizations.

Davita is a former NCAA Division I student-athlete at Syracuse University and holds the SHRM-SCP credential. She is a graduate of both Syracuse University and Strayer University. Davita has held multiple board seats and sub-committee positions in serving the community. Her recognitions include the 2010 NAPW Woman of the Year in Training and Development, the NAACP Syracuse Chapter Black Positive Image Award for community service, the 1987 Maryland Gatorade Player of the Year honor, a National High School Athletic Coaches Association Honorable Mention Basketball All-America distinction, Maryland Governor and Mayor citations for public service in 1987, and the Alpha Kappa Alpha Epsilon Omega Chapter Outstanding Young Women honor. She has also organized and facilitated youth conferences and workshops in Baltimore City and Harford County Maryland.
